MANEUVERING ARMIES IN HARD BATTLE AGAIN CHARGING BLUES RAKED BY ARTILLERY FIRE

Reds Successful In Getting Strong Position

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON
[Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondent
with the Red Army]

HEADQUARTERS NORTHERN DETACHMENT, In Camp Near Schofield Barracks, October 23, 1 p. m.—This was a Red battle-day for Oahu. The Northern invaders commanded by Capt. George K. McGunagle fell back at daylight from their temporary camp at Schofield Barracks to a splendid defensive position north of the Kakanuhua gulch, and repulsed the Blue attack with heavy loss to the latter army.

At 11:30 when the action ceased, there was no doubt as to which side was successful. The Red loss was considerable, according to the umpires.

Today was a wonderfully clear day, the sky having been swept clean by the rains, and the action took place on the plains, the panorama of battle was spread out below the observers in commanding positions so completely that practically all the detail of the action could be followed, and picturesque the action was.

With their plan of procedure received in the special situation given out last night, the Red Army marched out of camp at 6 o'clock this morning, the cavalry and artillery going by road and the infantry going by trails leading through the gulches and over the higher ground.

The Reds were given an hour's time to take up the defensive position called for in the special situation, but so smartly did they do their work that they arrived at the defensive point well ahead of the appointed time. Their position was taken up on the summit of a knoll directly north of the post, a strong natural position, with a gulch on one side and open fields on the other.

The Reds were disposed as follows: D troop and part of A troop of the cavalry were on the left flank, sent out to reconnoiter. C, B and part of A troops were in the left rear as reserves. Six companies of infantry were on the firing line with two companies of infantry as the local support. One battalion was held in reserve.

The troops took up their line position on the military crest of the knoll. The first view of the hostile Blue troops was caught at 7:35 o'clock and at 8:55 fire opened on the Reds' left flank between Red and Blue cavalry. At 9:15 o'clock the Red artillery opened on both Blue infantry and Blue cavalry, which was advancing right in the road and was under heavy play from the guns.

The Blues started a feint attack on the Reds' left flank and then gradually developed their attack on the battle front. The Blues suffered heavy cavalry losses. Two troops of the Blue cavalry under Capt. Orton crossed the gulch and tried to pass on the right of the Reds but such a hot fire was poured on them from the artillery that the umpire ruled that fifty per cent were killed and one troop accordingly was forced to return. The Red artillery had plenty of chance to play upon the cavalry and the umpires said the artillery did effective work.

At 11:30 the firing ceased and both armies returned to their camps of last night. The forces did not break camp today, but left for their maneuvers then returned.

Yesterday's Battle Indecisive, Say Umpires

BY CHARLES NORTON
[Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondent
with the Blue Army]

WITH THE BLUE ARMY IN THE FIELD, KOKOLEA HILL, Oct. 23, 12:30 p. m.—At noon today the results of the second battle between the rival Reds and Blues are indecisive, as were the results of the first day, but the Blue commander and his officers have no reason to feel other than elated over the

NEW PROBLEM GIVEN TO ARMIES RESULTS IN SECOND BATTLE

The war problem worked out by the maneuvering armies today, which resulted in the "Battle of Kakanuhua" is given in the following notification that the umpires sent to the two commanders, in the form of a "special situation" for each army.

Special Situation Of The Blues.
The results of the engagement of October 22 on the United States military reservation, were indecisive. The Blues held Kokolea Hill and the Reds confronted them.

At daylight October 23 the Blue commander discovered that the Reds had withdrawn toward Kawaihapa. At the same hour the patrols reported that the landing operations at Kawaihapa had ceased. The Blue commander decides to pursue the enemy at once.

Special Situation Of The Reds.
The results of the engagement on October 22, on the United States military reservation, were indecisive. The Blues held Kokolea Hill, and the Reds rested on their arms prepared to resume the attack at daylight, at which time reinforcements were expected to arrive.

At 8 p. m. October 22 the Red commander received the following message by field wire:
"It is believed that all the important Blue mobile force of Oahu are in your immediate front. The rough water and the explosion of several submarine mines have seriously interfered with the further disembarkation of our troops at Kawaihapa."

"Fall back with your command before daylight tomorrow and take up a defensive position between Kakanuhua and Kawaihapa, covering the 101-105 road, (Schofield Barracks map)."

ORTON'S CAVALRY HAS HARD TIME OF IT

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON
[Staff Correspondence by Telephone to Star-Bulletin]

HEADQUARTERS NORTHERN DETACHMENT, Oct. 22.—Home again!

The close of the first day's hostilities finds the Red and the Blue armies in camp on the Schofield Reservation, about a mile apart, the invaders being camped just east of the First Infantry's permanent camp, while the Blues are resting on their arms near the central maneuver station at Castner.

Both forces have been fighting over again the battle of Lellehua Plain, contested this morning, and both, as is not unusual in maneuver problems, claim the victory. The Reds are strongly of the opinion that by crossing Kakanuhua Gulch without opposition, they obtained the commanding position, and were in shape to hold the Blues in check, while the latter have a dozen reasons for thinking that they have the edge on the situation. The umpires, who are the only ones whose opinion counts on the score, are saying nothing. However, tomorrow will be another battle day, and then several disputed points may be settled.

Marines Cut Figure.
The injection of the marines into the war proved even more of a surprise than was anticipated by the department strategists, and when Captain Curtis' command arrived after a strenuous hike from Haleiwa, and went into camp with the Red army, they were greeted with considerable enthusiasm by the soldiers. Their mission was to cover the left flank of the Red column on its march from Kawaihapa to Schofield, and so successfully did they accomplish this that the squadron of Blue Cavalry, supposed yesterday morning to be patrolling the northwest coast, never

OFFICE SUPPLY SITE SET AT $73,413

R. R. Reidford, manager of the Bishop Trust Company, and who has been accepted throughout the Mahukaa site condemnation suits as a property valuation expert, testified in the suit involving the Office Supply Company site this morning that he believes the value of that property at the present time is $73,413.

His figure was reached with the valuation taken in December, 1910, as a basis, and includes all charges. He set the value of the land at $18 per square foot, and added $10,000 for improvements. His figure per square foot is 50 cents higher than that given as the value of the Hawaiian Trust Company property adjoining, and he explained the increased price by the fact that the Office Supply Company site is nearer the corner of Fort and King streets, which he declared the Robert W. Shingle, chairman of the Republican territorial committee, this morning left in the S. S. Mauna Kea for Hilo to accompany Delegate to Congress Kuhio Kalaniana'ole, who is ill, back to Honolulu. They will return Saturday morning. The Republican territorial central committee has chosen W. T. Rawlins to take Kuhio's place on the stump on the island of Hawaii. Rawlins left in the Mauna Kea this morning and will return next Tuesday morning, Oct. 29. Shingle will send a wireless to condition morning as to Kuhio's condition.

NEW PHASE INVOLVED IN NOMINATIONS

Democratic Protest Over Maui Filings Leads to Unexpected Light

SUPREME COURT ACTION HALTED TILL TOMORROW

Attorney General Asks for and Is Given Time to Consider New Development

A new and unexpected phase has developed in the controversy over the validity of the nominations of the Republican candidates on Maui; one so serious that the argument on the question before the Supreme Court this morning was postponed at the request of Attorney General Lindsay until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, to give him time to thoroughly investigate the subject.

The new question involves a technical error, apparently a very plain one, committed by each Republican candidate on Maui, and it is likely that the Supreme Court's decision, after the arguments are submitted, will be principally as to whether the technical error is of greater import than the evident intent of the candidates to comply with the law. There seems, at first blush, to be little doubt they have erred.

This error is made the first point in the contentions raised in the submitted agreement of facts drawn by Attorneys C. W. Ashford and R. F. Quarles, but it did not catch the Attorney General's eye until this morning. He undertook the principal and only contention was with regard to the statement of party affiliation by the candidates, on the nomination papers sent in by them to the Territorial Secretary.

The new phase hinges on the strict interpretation of Section 31, of the Revised Statutes, wherein, among other things it is stated that "No person shall be permitted to stand as a candidate for election to the legislature unless he shall be nominated and so requested in writing, signed by not less than twenty-five duly qualified electors of the district in which the election is ordered and in which he is requested to be a candidate."

The concluding words, "in which he is requested to be a candidate," supply the bone of contention. It appears that each application made to the Maui candidates by twenty-five voters contain the words "as (senator or representative) of the Territory of Hawaii," Attorney Ashford asserts this wording is not as required by the legal paragraph quoted above; that it should read "as (senator or representative) of the district," the blank to be filled in with the name or number of the particular district from which each nominee desires to be elected.

The Attorney General is devoting the day to a close study of the problem.

"I hardly care to give my views in the matter, as it is now before the court," said Attorney Ashford this morning, "but I can say that we believe it a material point or we would

SUPERVISORS HURRY FOR STREET AUTO ORDINANCE

Pass First Reading, but Will Grant Public Hearing on Thursday Night

Last night the Board of Supervisors passed the Fort street automobile ordinance on first reading, rejecting a suggestion that a public hearing should first be held on the measure. In fact Supervisor McClellan, the member that had even moved for the hearing, seconded the motion for first reading of the bill immediately afterward, only withdrawing his own motion when Mayor Fern gently asked him if such was his intention in seconding the opposing motion.

About the only other lively incident of the meeting was an eloquent plea on behalf of attention to the streets bounding Emma Square, made by E. L. Schwarzbach when Murray had stated that the thoroughfares in question were really among the finest in condition in the city. The citizen would have caused keen regret to the engineers of the "business men's ticket," had they heard him on this occasion, for allowing his name to be dropped from the inventory of supervisory timber prior to the Republic convention, so ably did he handle his subject.

Contention Between Parties.
No decision was registered regarding the contention between the Republican and Democratic organizations over the occupancy of Aala Park on the evening before the election. When the mayor asked for a report on the subject, Kruger said that it was practically settled by a decision of the Republicans to hold their closing rally at Palace Square. Mayor Fern asked if the Democrats were to have the band, the reply to which was in effect, "nothing doing." It appeared that the whole business was in the hands of two committees, those having to do with parks and with the band respectively, but neither of them had a report forthcoming, and it was stated to have been left with the managers of the two parties to adjust between themselves.
